FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

QUEÉBEC – April 26, 2006 - Advitech Inc. (TSX-V: AVI) today announced that it has reached an agreement in principle, setting forth the proposed scope of a marketing and distribution agreement for Dermylex™ with Enbio-Life Biotechnology & Medical Company Ltd, ("Enbio-Life"), a subsidiary of Yusheng Pharma. Enbio-Life is a Taiwanese company, which markets nutraceutical products in Taiwan, China and other Asian countries. This agreement is for the Taiwanese market and Enbio-Life has an option for the market in China as well.

The Contract will give Enbio-Life the exclusive rights from Advitech to market in Taiwan products using Dermylex™, Advitech's clinically-proven bioactive ingredient for the treatment of psoriasis. This three-year Contract will provide for Minimum Purchase Requirements to be met by Enbio-Life and royalties on sales generated by Enbio-Life to be paid to Advitech. Other terms and conditions of the Agreement were not disclosed.

Commenting on the news, Mr Renaud Beauchesne, CEO of Advitech, said: "We are very pleased with this Agreement because it provides Advitech with its first partnership in Asia and the possibility of entering new Asian markets in the near future. New market reports on psoriasis are showing an increasing incidence of the disease in these countries". Mr Jones Wang, CEO of Enbio-Life, added "We are seeking to build on this partnership with Advitech and, as we work directly with hospitals and clinics, we are confident that we shall create the demand and the right network for Dermylex™."
